

"Boy of East Side Street Is Quicker and Brighter Than Lads in Good Homes"

Surrounded by Right Influences He'll Grow Into Desirable Citizen, Says Mornay Williams,
Head of Child Labor Committee.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

"The problem of the child is one of the greatest, if not the very greatest of the social problems of to-day, and we are not solving it with anything like adequacy. Our best and brightest boys are turning into criminals, instead of gentlemen, solely through our own social ignorance and carelessness."

That is the opinion of a man who certainly knows a great deal about children. He is Mornay Williams, chairman of the New York State Child Labor Committee, for years President of the New York Juvenile Asylum, and an earnest worker in many other philanthropic organizations having to do with boys and girls. The other night Mr. Williams talked to the New Society Club Forum about "Better Children," and yesterday I asked him for more particulars on the subject.

"First of all, we have got to make up our minds to the fact that children are not born bad," he announced emphatically. "We have got to get rid of the old Puritan idea of natural depravity. Of course, there are a very few seeming exceptions, as in the case of Jesse Pomeroy, the Massachusetts boy criminal, convicted of such heinous crimes. But isolated cases like his only prove the rule. Most boys and girls are born with at least equal chances of developing into good men and women, or the reverse."

Causes of Delinquency.
Then how do you account for the large amount of juvenile delinquency, particularly in the big cities? I asked. "There are three main causes, though each overlaps the others," said Mr. Williams. "The first and most important I have called motherlessness."

"Why for the greater part of the children filling the juvenile courts are those who have not had their fair share of attention from their mothers."

"They are not necessarily orphans, in the literal sense of the word. They may even have both parents living. But they have been deprived of motherly care."

"Perhaps the father is a drunkard or shiftless. In that case, the mother has to become the bread-winner of the family, and whether she goes out to work as a scrub-woman or factory hand, she is, nevertheless, away from her little ones for most of the working hours."

"Then, along with the lack of motherly attention comes the evil of the crowded two or three-room home. It is not crowded by the family alone either, but by the inevitable cheap lodger. Often this man works at night and has to sleep in the daytime. Such a home offers no place for children to play, especially for boys. Of course they are forced into the streets."

Fascination of the Street.
"That is the third contributory cause to child delinquency, the life in the streets. Unless one has had the experience, or possesses a vivid imagination, it is hard to realize the fascination the city street possesses for any child who has spent much time in it. Some of the world's most famous books have been written on the theme of the great street and its influence on the humanity passing through it. The average child has a much more powerful imagination than the average man."

"The pit of it is that the gang leaders are, inevitably, the wisest, brightest, strongest little personalities, the boys who, in other surroundings, would lead their classes and captain the football eleven."

"It is their environment, and only their environment, which turns them into embryo criminals. The children of the slums who are living at all after the age of five are literally the survival of the fittest."

Only the Strong Escape Death.
"In the struggle they have been compelled to wage physically against the conditions surrounding them. Only the strong, indeed only the unusually strong, escape death."

"The boy to be found on the streets of the east side up to the age of fourteen is, on the average, quicker and brighter in body and mind than your little brother or mine. If he can only be surrounded by the right influences of the wrong influences at this formation period he will develop into the most desirable of citizens. On the other hand, if he is left to go his own gait to the age of adolescence, he is almost sure to turn into a confirmed criminal."

"But are not the various charitable organizations reaching these children?" I inquired.

"Not with any degree of success," said Mr. Williams, gravely. "I shall never forget the case of Christian Hansen. He was a small boy of fourteen who was sent to the Juvenile Asylum during my connection with it. He had been the inmate of I don't know how many institutions. He had a father, but that individual disclaimed all power to manage him. He was a confirmed cigarette fiend, a clever pickpocket and a promiscuous in the bargain. We could not keep him at the asylum, for he would have thought nothing of setting fire to it, with all the boys asleep, in order to effect his own escape."

"His case was brought on before three judges. Mead and another representative of the asylum were present."

Eight men could not decide. "There were two men from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. And there was the

COMMITTEE OF 14 DIRECTS RAIDS IN THE TENDERLOIN

Acting on evidence secured by the Committee of Fourteen, and assisted by its secretary, J. H. Hook, who pointed out the men for whom warrants had been issued, Inspector Daly and a dozen men late last night descended on a number of Tenderloin resorts and took ten prisoners.

Assistant District-Attorney Reynolds also took an active part in the raids, and appeared against the prisoners in the Men's Night Court.

The raids followed a two-month investigation by the Committee, assisted by three detectives from Deputy Commissioner Flynn's staff.

About 11 o'clock two patrol wagons were driven to Sixth avenue. Inspector Daly and his men scattered around in the various resorts, and then Secretary Hook and Mr. Reynolds walked in and pointed out those for whom they had warrants.

In the Night Court nine of the ten prisoners waived examination, and the tenth man, charged with selling liquor after 1 o'clock, was held. He was Harry Webb, arrested in the Barrel Cafe, in West Thirtieth street. Magistrate House fixed the bail at $1,000. Charles Beckel and Peter Barsch, arrested at the Bal Talarin, in West Twenty-fifth street, as owners, were held in $500 bail. William Ellis, arrested at the same place for excise violation, was held in $1,000. Edward Roberts was arrested at the Princess, in Sixth avenue, and held in $2,500 for trial as alleged proprietor, and David Casper and George Smith at the Heidelberg, in West Twenty-ninth street, $2,500 being the amount fixed as bail in each case.

The Growth OF CHILDREN

depends upon proper nourishment—a balanced ration. The most frequent lack is bone-forming material, causing soft, weak, diseased, crooked bones.

Scott's Emulsion supplies every element needed. It's a balanced ration for bone as well as flesh. Every child should have a small dose daily.
